Speech Title:	Grit: The Strongest Predictor of Success
Speaker:	Angela Duckworth
Summary of the Video:	In summary, what the video has intended to say that good grades and good results are not gained through how smart you are, your IQ or the effort you put in, its about grit or the passion and perseverance for aiming and achieving long term goals. Grit is having the stamina to not give up easily to being a failure, just because you failed once, doesnt make you branded as a failure forever right? that's why for many people to succeed, even if you are a failure or not, you need to have grit. And that's because life isnt easy and sometimes your goals are too far too reach or too work for, and that's where grit comes in because Grit gives you the perseverance and passion to move forward and achieve your goals, with Grit, you are sticking to your goals and your future, not just temporarily or just a few days but for months, years and then working your heart out just to make your dreams a reality. And Grit is like keeping on going, no matter how hard it is, no matter what life throws at you, no matter how much you get beaten down, if you have Grit, you still have the strength and perseverance to achieve your goals and make it a reality because not everything lasts forever even failure, so even if you fail so many times not just in tests but in life, Grit is what makes you keep going to achieve it, being smart and having good IQ or being a failure and having low scores in everything is not what decides your life, its the passion and perseverance to keep on going and achieving your goals, failure or not. The concept called "Growth Mindset" is also very important for this, because it is the belief that learning isnt fixed, and with your effort and Grit, it can change and even if you are a failure, you are going to persevere much more if you were to fail because people that have the belief of "Growth Mindset" believe that Failure isnt a permanent condition, it can change over time through effort and Grit.

Speech Content: Introduction: (How did the speech start?) Body: (What were the main points?) Conclusion: (How did the speech end?)	Introduction: Angela Lee Duckworth got a position teaching math to seventh graders in a New York public school after leaving a high-powered consulting career. She immediately understood that IQ wasn't the only factor that distinguished successful pupils from unsuccessful students. She shows how "grit" is a predictor of success in this video. Body: She noted that her students with the strongest performers did not have a good IQ scores. And her bright students were suffering as well. But she believed that every one of her students could learn the topics, if they worked hard and long enough. She also believes that when it comes to education it needs to be much better in terms of understanding and learning from a motivational perspective and psychological perspective. She assumes that you have more chance to be successful if you have grit. Grit is commitment and passion for your goals. She thinks that they are many talented people yet they do not follow through to their commitments. Growth mindset is also a great idea for building grit but it simply needs more.

	Conclusion: As the video has demonstrated, I agree that was said about the grit and passion. to be opinion with that our brain can change and grow in all the challenges that have given to us. It is necessary to keep go on, due to the fact that failure is not a permanent condition. Failure allows us to be excelled and the key to success. IQ is to all intents and purposes indicator that there is success according to science. Hard work matter the most since it's the only thing you can control but doesn't mean it's the most effective thing. Grit is more than being hard working. It is having the balls to continue in the face of failure.
Delivery Skills and Techniques (What are the best/worst delivery skills/techniques of the speaker?)	One of the things we like about her speech is her sheer confidence. Which really relates to the topic she is discussing. She quickly gives out her thought and that's what makes her confident. But we also noticed she quickly changes topics when giving a speech.

Bias/Prejudice (Did the speaker show bias? Why? Why not?)	Grit, according to Duckworth, is "passion and continuous persistence applied to long-term performance without regard for rewards or accolades along the way." It combines tenacity, determination, and self-control in the pursuit of long-term goals that can take months, years, or even decades to achieve. According to Duckworth's findings, grit may be just as important as intelligence in achieving high levels of success. This is a major result because intelligence was once thought to be the most important factor in achieving success.
Ted Talk Review (Would you recommend this video to fellow students? Explain.)	Yes, because it really motivates us that it doesn't matter how smart we are it's all about commitment and grit. And that if we don't have grit we won't start anywhere.
